The Secretary of State for Digital Mounir Mahjoubi was accompanied by French Tech Entrepreneurs, recalled that the creation of French Tech, four years ago was aiming to building an ecosystem of French start ups. Today, the success speaks itself with 10,000 start-ups and 35 labelled communities in France and internationally. At that time, the current President Macron was a fervent supporter of this initiative while he was the Ministry of economy and Finance. The ecosystem contributes itself to both job creation and the influence of France in Europe and worldwide and is above all a symbolic of French dynamism and entrepreneurship. Not to forget that Entrepreneurship [?] as recalled President Macron, during the inauguration of Station F, chaired and launched by Xavier Niel, on " Entrepreneurship is French, so it means that, the French should be proud of receiving this heritage of "Entrepreneurship" [?] and must show it to the rest of the world“^[2], as it has already inspired, many dynamic actors of the digital and in whatsoever domains, to create their own company“¹
